The lost kite

On a windy Saturday, Nora took her new yellow kite to the hill behind her house. The wind pulled the kite high into the sky, and Nora laughed as it danced above the trees.

Suddenly a strong gust tugged the string out of her hands. The kite flew away over the park and got stuck in an old oak tree.

Nora felt like crying. Then her neighbour, Mr Park, came by with a long ladder.

Together they rescued the kite. "Next time, wrap the string around your wrist," he said with a smile.
